Community

One of the greatest needs I see in the women I meet with is that of community. A way of gathering with others where we are coming together in unity of purpose and with a clear understanding of our role to create and engage.

You are probably familiar with our church Mission Statement: "Making Jesus Christ our All, and sharing Him with all."

This is the central purpose that unifies us. We don't have to be the same age or stage of life, or walking through the same experiences to be able to build one another up and encourage one another on to love and good deeds (Hebrews 10:24-25). The command for Believers is to be in relationship with other Believers. The steps to being in community with others are simple, but not always easy. Insecurity, fear, past hurt, and many other experiences can tempt us to avoid community, but that means we will likely miss out on the healing that can be done there, as well as a key piece of the transformation the Lord has for each of us as we grow in relationship with Him.

Over the next year, we will be digging into what it means to pursue biblical community with other believers. We will look at Scripture and our role in participating in community. My prayer is that you will not just gain more knowledge on community but truly step into it.
